Forecast For Northeast England
Issued by Met Office Exeter
at 1600 on Wednesday 02 Jun 2021

++ Valid for broadcast between 1800 and 0600

Headline:
Some overnight showers, possibly thundery. Warm again Thursday.

This Evening and Tonight:
Areas of fog and low cloud once again moving inland this evening on the easterly breeze. Showers moving into southern parts late in the night, with a risk of thunder, otherwise most places staying dry. Minimum temperature 7 deg C (45 deg F).

Thursday:
Some early morning showers, with fog and low cloud burning back to the coast. Becoming warm by the afternoon, with sunny spells. A few late afternoon showers breaking out. Maximum temperature 22 deg C (72 deg F).

Outlook for Friday to Sunday:
Mainly dry Friday though an isolated shower is possible in the east. Feeling fresher. Largely fine and warm Saturday and Sunday, with sunny spells. Some coastal fog possible at times.

(C) Crown Copyright 2021. Published by the Met Office.